

Daniel J. Hahn, Sr. is the President of Furness Electric Company, Inc. in Wilmington, De. Dan studied at the University of Delaware and is an Electrician Journeyman Wireman, graduating from the IBEW Local 313's Apprenticeship in 1995.

Dan is the second generation of Hahn's to own Furness Electric, a company founded by Peter D. Furness, Sr. in 1945. Dan's father, John F. Hahn, Jr., a lifetime NECA member and 2000 inductee to the Academy of Electrical Contracting was the longtime President and Owner that established Furness as a premier electrical contractor in the Tri-State Area. Dan began working in the warehouse for his father in 1985. He later held positions of Apprentice, Journeyman, Foreman and Estimator/Project Manager. Dan was named President in 2005 and took ownership of Furness Electric in 2010. Under Dan's leadership and guidance, Furness has continued its outstanding service and dedication to countless loyal customers. His commitment to jobsite safety has brought Furness numerous accolades including eight consecutive NECA Penn Del Jersey Safety Awards (2007-2014), four NECA District 2 Safety Awards ('08, '10, '11, '12) and four consecutive Delaware Contractors Governor Safety Awards (2010-2013).

Dan is currently the Vice President of the NECA Penn Del Jersey Chapter. He is the Chairman of the Joint Apprenticeship and Training Committee for IBEW Local 313. He is a Trustee on their Health and Welfare Fund and also sits on the Labor/Management Committee. Dan is an Executive Officer on the Delaware Contractors Association Board of Directors and he has a seat on the New Castle County Vo-Tech Advisory Committee. He is a Board Member of the Holy Angels Athletic Association in Newark, De and also coaches several sports for Holy Angels Parish and the Catholic Diocese of Wilmington Youth Ministry.

Dan resides in Landenberg, Pa with his wife, Angela and their five children, Joshua, John, Daniel, Isabella, and Andrew.
